

International Masters' Students Conference in Educational Sciences and Pedagogy

The Department of Philosophy at the University of Ioannina, Greece, as part of its MA Program in Educational Sciences, is excited to announce an upcoming online conference scheduled for Saturday, March 16th, 2024. This event is tailored for both national and international students enrolled in any MA program related to Education and/or Pedagogy.

The primary objective of this conference is to provide students with a platform to showcase their thesis projects and receive valuable feedback from both their peers and educators. We are pleased to offer this opportunity to students at no cost.

Students interested in presenting their projects are kindly requested to submit an abstract in English, comprising approximately 250 words, by December 17th, 2023. The submitted abstract should include essential details such as the study's title, its purpose, methodology employed, and any preliminary results. We welcome submissions even if the results are not fully prepared; however, preference will be given to completed studies.

Our esteemed scientific committee will thoroughly evaluate all submissions, and by February 05th, presenters will be notified of the committee's decision. We will share the finalized conference program with you by February 19th.

We look forward to your active participation and engagement in this enriching academic exchange. Your contributions will enhance the quality of our conference, fostering a vibrant atmosphere of collaboration and knowledge sharing.

Please submit your abstract via email to Mrs. Chrisovalantou Athanasiadou: ch.athanasiadou@uoi.gr
